C A conversation on a blog

Sophie

Hi. I'm 16 and I've followed your blog since last June. At first I thought it was great, because you often talked about fashion, which I really like. But now you talk about nothing else! What about more serious things like climate change, politics, and relationships?

Olivia

Sophie, you have to understand that my blog started out as a bit of fun, but, since I left school, it's become my job, and the people who pay me are clothing brands and clothes shops. Sorry, but if you want more "serious things," you'd better read a newspaper.

Sophie

Olivia, I'm really disappointed to learn that the only reason you're a blogger is to make money. Last year, I felt we had things in common, but now I see that we are very different. I'm not going to follow your blog any more.

Olivia

I'd like to say I'm sorry, Sophie, but I have thousands of followers, so...

I An online news article

AGVS announces a $1 million prize!

The American giant AGVS announced yesterday that it is offering a $1 million prize for the first person who can take a photo proving that Nessie – the Loch Ness monster – exists.

Next month, AGVS is launching a new video game based on the search for Nessie and this is its way of publicising the game. It seems like a lot of money to spend on publicity, but Jack Stein, the company president, says, “People have often tried to photograph Nessie. But the “monsters” are usually pieces of wood or deliberate fakes, say the experts. I’m not saying that Nessie doesn’t exist, but I’m convinced that no one’s going to prove anything.”

AGVS’s announcement has been welcomed by businesses in the Loch Ness area. “It’s going to attract hundreds of visitors,” said a local souvenir shop owner. “We don’t normally do much business in the winter months – so this is really good news!”

Is this what Nessie looks like?
